An Error in Official Guide Warnke Into

old filly Little Nell, by Leonatus out of Gray Nell, in the last race. This filly having caused the death of Jockey Andy Mchy. After McCarthy's death Little Nell iid not run on the big tracks. A few weeks ade her appearance at Gloucester, and peo lly jumped to the conclusion that it was Warnke's filly by Leonatus. When Little the guide and found that the Glovcester filly's ree was down Leonatus-Gray Nell. The tawards were informed and Little Nell was orred scratched. Later, however, Mr. Warnke oved that Little Nell had never been out of his hands, and that the Gloucester Little Nell's sire was Duke of Montrose, and not tue. The official guide does not seem o be infallible, and the racing associations septing its compilations as absolute facts.

Mr. Pierre Lorillard's unsightly pony Rancocas string is to be warmed up under the ulking, will cause a serious accident some suile up the stretch, with Rancocas repreraces where entries are heavy probably This pony gets directly in their This pony gets directly in their bath and a number of times collisions have seemed imminent. If every owner took it into his head to send a pony is the post with his horses there would be a marry time indeed. Perhaps there is a good reason why Mr. Lordilard's pony should be allowed to bother other turimen's horses. If not the stewards should keep him off the course and prevent accidents that will surely occur.

One of the queerest exhibitions of riding seen in some time was that of Blake on Adelbert is the first race. Adelbert is owned by Mr. James Galway, a member of that immaculate body known as the Board of Control.

Mr. Blake got away is front with Adelbert, pulled him back last and made no effort until be was at least a dozen lengths behind his neld. Then, as the horses neared the patrol judge, be closed rapidly, making up the dozen lengths in a half furlong. Of course he coulon't win after this kind of riding. Blake was asked to explain his riding after the race and he said that on the backstretch he could not hold the horse's head up. The stewards accepted his explanation, but the public will hardly swallow it. They will want to know how it was that Blake, if unable to help his horse on the backstretch, managed to so improve as to make up a cozen lengths in half a furlong.

Marty Bergen is riding in great form and it is a pleasure for the writer to record this fact. Bergen is perhaps as popular a jockey as rider. One never sees this young man strutting about with the boasting manner common to other jockeys. He is quick and retiring. He has his own peculiar ideas or riding races and it must be confessed that he always lands near the front. His riding of Property yesterday was perfection. He saved the filly to the last moment and in a beautifully timed rush snatched the victory by a head. Bergen is doing good work for the Ehret stable.

Secretary Crickmore yesterday handed Frank Ehret a check for $25,000 as part pay-ment of the money won by Sir Francis in the Matron Stakes.

Jockey Johnny Lambley was at the track yesterday looking very well. He expects to ride in a few days.

The two veteran jockeys Barbee and Shanes had mounts yesterday.

Shames had mounts yesterday.
